ABOUT THE JOURNAL

Name: THAI JOURNAL OF HEPATOLOGY
Title abbreviation: Thai J Hepatol
ISSN: 2586-9833
DOI: http://doi.org/10.30856/th.jhep2018vol1iss2
Copyright: Thai Association for the study of the liver

AIM

The Thai Journal of Hepatology is a journal of the Thai Association for the Study of the Liver. It is aimed at discussing and promoting knowledge in the field of hepatology for all medical professionals and researchers involved in the study of liver diseases. The journal is open access, published online every three months, and accepts all types of articles including reviews, short reviews, guidelines, case reports, short communications, imaging in hepatology, letters to the editor, and research articles. Authors can read or download the contents of the journal from the website. Articles can be submitted in either Thai or English.

Scope

- Normal liver anatomy and pathology
- Acute and chronic hepatitis
- Cirrhosis and complications
- Viral hepatitis
- Fatty liver
- Alcoholic liver disease
- Drugs and toxins induced liver diseases
- Immune related liver diseases
- Cholestatic liver diseases
- Benign and malignant tumours of the liver
- Biliary tract diseases
- Cystic liver diseases
- Bacterial and parasitic infection of the liver
- Genetics in liver diseases
- Liver surgery and liver transplantation
- Immunology and genetics related to liver diseases
- Imaging in hepatology
- Pediatric liver diseases

Publication Open access, online every 3 months
Article processing charge Free

Special statement

All responsibility for the published articles in the Thai Journal of Hepatology rests with the Thai Association for the Study of the Liver and the authors. Any use of the content must be approved by the Thai Association or the authors. This includes permission for any republication and translation.